Reconstructions of past Saharan dust deposition in marine sediments provide foundational records of North African climate over time scales of 10³ to 10⁶ years. Previous dust records show primarily glacial-interglacial variability in the Pleistocene, in contrast to other monsoon records showing strong precessional variability. Here, we present the first Saharan dust record spanning multiple ...

Geologic modelling, geological modelling or geomodelling is the applied science of creating computerized representations of portions of the Earth's crust based on geophysical and geological observations made on and below the Earth surface. A geomodel is the numerical equivalent of a three-dimensional geological map complemented by a description of physical quantities in the domain of interest.

RNA splicing patterns in antibody-secreting cells are shaped by endoplasmic reticulum stress, ELL2 (eleven-nineteen lysine-rich leukemia gene 2) induction, and changes in the levels of snRNAs. Endoplasmic reticulum stress induces the unfolded protein response comprising a highly conserved set of genes crucial for cell survival; among these is Ire1, whose auto-phosphorylation drives it to ...

1. Introduction. It is well known that the use of adequate thermal energy storage (TES) systems in the building and industrial sector presents high potential in energy conservation .The use of TES can overcome the lack of coincidence between the energy supply and its demand; its application in active and passive systems allows the use of waste energy, peak load shifting strategies, and ...

For nearly 300 years, montane people and early explorers of the European Alps learned to read the geomorphological imprint left by glaciers in the landscape and to understand that glaciers had once been more extensive than today (Windham and Martel, 1744).Contemporaneously, it was also observed in the Alps that glaciers move by a combination of meltwater-induced sliding at the base (de ...
